Office of Business Developments launches redesigned website

New website features social media, online registration, videos

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (Aug. 19, 2011) -- The City of San Bernardino, Office of Business Development has launched a redesigned web site.

The new web site address is www.sbbizresource.com. The site will offer several new features such as allowing people to register for business workshops online and a calendar of upcoming activities.

"The new web site makes it easier for people to watch or register for our training workshops, which are becoming increasingly popular," said Lori Tillery, economic development manager. "The web site also features instructional videos about opening a new business or improving your existing business, as well as links to our social media sites and partnering agencies."

The Office of Business Development was created to promote business recruitment, assist with business retention, and provide business resources and information to San Bernardino area companies.

For more information call 909.963.5026.
